Given the compelling findings from the first phase of the study, it's especially important to conduct the subsequent phases to understand the reasons why some schools were able to achieve much stronger family engagement scores, and to create a measurement tool that will help schools improve their family engagement work over time. Learning Heroes and TNTF are actively fundraising for these phases of work. Please write to Dr. Eyal Bergman (ebergman@learningheroes.org) if you'd like to discuss further.
